Why do my results not change when I toggle the Group Related Editions setting?

Applies to

- WorldCat Discovery

Answer

If you have your sort set to Best Match and your search results contain mostly articles, the results returned will be very similar whether you have editions grouped or not. This is because articles do not group by editions. This only happens with books. So, your results and result number might change slightly because the few books in the search results may group based on edition, but the order of results will appear very similar.