What is a WorldCat data sync collection and where can I find documentation and training?

Last updated: Fri, 07 Aug 2020 12:43:37 GMT

A WorldCat data sync collection (formerly known as a Batchload project) is an automated process that compares records from your institution against records in WorldCat and manages holdings on those records matched. The process also allows for adding new records into WorldCat. To learn more, view our documentation and training information.